ARTHUR AND THE SOUTH.

A few days ago the Oregonian published a story of President Arthur's refusal to demand more for the southern states. It is to be hoped that the story is true, and that we are to hear more of the same sort.

The relations of the president with the south have been a fruitful subject of discussion, not only of which has been a friendly criticism. Northern republicans have suffered so much by the fallacy and loose behavior of the southern allies in the past, that their minds are very easily prejudiced against anything bearing the label of southern republicanism to this day. It is almost inevitable, under these conditions, that any republican administration attempting to take advantage of the rivalry and antagonism of the southern states, should be forced into the hands of agents disloyal in their character and record to the northern wing of the republican party. This present administration has been even less fortunate in this respect than we had a right to expect. It has made a blunder in its policy in the south, and it is to be hoped that it will be able to correct it. The president's policy in the south has been a failure, and it is to be hoped that it will be able to correct it.

It is a pity that the president's policy in the south has been a failure, and it is to be hoped that it will be able to correct it. A BROAD SUEZ CANAL.

It seems to be certain that a canal is to be built to connect the waters of the Red sea with the Mediterranean. The project is to be carried out by the Suez Canal Company. The canal is to be built in a straight line, and it is to be 100 feet deep. The project is to be carried out by the Suez Canal Company.
